

My Head is Full of You

Nina Ricci

When I lie awake in the morning
At 3 am in the morning
Before the train makes the dawning break
My head is full of you

When my bed's been made and the dogs been out
When the oatmeal's sugared but the milk is sour'd
When my clothes are pressed and the coffee's made
My head is full of you
When my car is cranked and warming up
And I've checked my latitudes
I've purse my lips in the rearview mirror
My head is full of you
When the drive time gives me time to pray
My head is full of you

When the oil stains look like highway snakes
When the heat waves shake on the lid
When I can't make out what the road signs say
My head is full of you
It's not the most convenient place to stop and have a thought
I'm distracted driving in the rumble lane
And I hope that I don't get caught!
When I make it home at half past eight
My head's still full of you

When my gas tank arrow points to empty
And my rent is coming due
When the minute hand sets it's heel against my plan
My head is full of you
When I'm tangled in my tomorrows
With so many things to do
I close my eyes on yesterday
My head is full of you
When tomorrow's yet to have mistakes
My head is full of you

When my eyes are full and the levy breaks
When my tears pour forth like a spout
When I'm heavy-hearted and I'm all give out
My head is full of you

When I think my time is running out
What I may not ever do
I think how long forever is
My head is full of you
When the weeping willow has her day
My head is full of you

*"My Head is Full of You" written by Nina Ricci
BMI Music @2022 All Rights Reserved*